Johnson Confers With Dobrynin

By Drew Pearson

President Johnson had an unusual talk with Soviet Am-rights," he said, "and we're bassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin going to respect other people's when the Ambassador came rights."

in to give a pledge of continued coexistence from the new rulers of the Kremlin.

The President took advantage of the call to sit down in his rocking chair, spraw1 his long legs out in front of the fireplace and chat with the Ambassador on the aims and ideals of the United States for a whole hour.

Pearson

"Charles L. Lamb once said, 'I don't like that man, and I don't want to know him. If I got to know him, I'm sure I'd wiser to send in one admiral go to hell and making him like him," the President told to cut the water off than it was go are two different propothe Ambassador. Then he went on to say that the Russians don't know the United States and the Americans don't know the Soviet Union, but he was sufficient. We will make our sure that if they once got to know each other they would like each other.

He reviewed some of the tense moments that have occurred in recent relations between the United States and man, was fighting the power Communist countries, includ-company in Texas. ing the Gulf of Tonkin incident.

stroyer be fired on the high make a bit of progress," the say represents their views to achieve success is not to seas," he said, and pointed out President told the Soviet en too."

taliated within judicious Methodist deacon and didn't son told Dobrynin that he was

"We're going to respect our

"Send in the Marines"

the Guantanamo incident in as he could be, and said: "But which, he said, "Mr. Castro I don't want to go there." decided to cut our water off.

there. about $5 million to $6 million the power company to go to a year with them.

"Suddenly and impetuously and impulsively, and I think I said," How did you like my irrationally, he cut off our speech?" water. The shout went up, 'Send in the Marines!' But we let our coffee cool a bit hope you go a long ways. But and then we decided for bet the first thing you have to ter or for worse that it was learn is that telling a man to to send in a regiment of Mar-sitions.' ines to turn the water on.

we will make this base self-$5 million worth of his exchange."

about when he, as a young any more shooting."

dent of the power company to tell you. These are my own "We couldn't let our de for two days and I didn't personal views, but what I Chief Justice, "that the way that the United States had re-voy. "He just sat there like a At another point, Mr. John- © 1964, Bell-McClure Syndicate, Inc.

"The old man just looked space. Mr. Johnson also reviewed at me as calm and restrained

"All the board of directors "We were paying him for came over and congratulated that water and we were em- me on the fine speech I had ploying 3000 Cubans to work made and how courageous it We were spending was to tell the president of hell. Finally I went to the one old lawyer who was wise and

"He said, 'Well, son, you are young in public life, and I

"Well, we're not going to "So we told Mr. Castro that tell you to go to hell," the President told the Soviet Amown water. We cut off about be a little bend on your side and a little bend on ours.

"I've seen enough of shoot-Mr. Johnson went on to ing in the last war in the Paquote an old story of his cific and don't want to see

"I negotiated with the presi- not what my advisers told me and resigns"?

give an answer. I was some- "proud" of the Soviet Union's what impulsive in my youth, achievement in launching and I finally got disgusted three-man space capsule and and I said: 'As far as I am he considered it healthy to concerned, you can go to hell.' conduct a peaceful race for

"After the election, if I'm re-elected," the President concluded, "I hope we can work together for peace. So far, we have just scratched the surface."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was so pleased when he read over a summary of the President's conversation with Dobrynin that he went over to the White House to congratulate him.

Baseball Opinion

Members of the highest court in the land were attending a birthday party in the Supreme Court building for Justice William O. Douglas, now 25 years on the bench.

Chief Justice Earl Warren, who never fails to take in the bassador. "But there's got to World Series, was talking about the photo finish of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"What does it mean," asked Joel Fisher, the Washington aviation attorney, "when Yogi Berra wins the pennant and At one point, the President gets fired, and Johnny Reane told the Ambassador: "This is wins the world championship

"It just proves," replied the